

Sirs:

I choose to pay and listen to Satelite Radio (XM Radio) because it gives me the opportunity to listen to music, news, traffic and weather without all of the ads and sales pitches. I think it is important that the National Association of Broadcasters understand that competition is a good thing and should make them realize that perhaps they have stopped giving the listener what she or he want from radio.... Please do not "screw up" my right to pay for something I want to listen to rather than having the National Association of Broadcasters, their lobbyists, and those who are in their "back pockets" tell me what I am going to listen to....They (the broadcasters) need to take a look at what is happening with cable television stations, this is no different than that....It is what I want in my car, my house, and wherever I go. This is what I chose to do with my money and I do not need you or the National Association of Broadcasters to tell me what I will listen to.

I can go all over the United States and listen to a particular station the whole time. A regular radio station cannot provide this to me. A regular radio station has such trash on it that you may get 20 minutes of music and 3 minutes of news in an hour. They are so far behind the technology curve they may never catch up. Stop the whinning! The money would be better spent if you stop paying the lobbyists, etc. and spend that money on making your radio stations better....time to come into the 21st Century!
